CLEVELAND, Aug. 30.—New laurels wreathed aviation today and the National Air Races prepared a welcome for its newest heroes as women flyers tuned motors for further assaults, on old speed marks.

Smashing of the transcontinental record by two, and of the west coast to Cleveland record by all three of the trio of fliers placing in the Bendix trophy race overshadowed other events on an otherwise interesting program at the races today.

Await Record Smashers.

James G. "Jimmy" Haizlip of Ferguson, Mo., just outside St. Louis who won the derby with a coast to Cleveland time of 10 hours, 15 minutes and 45.75 seconds and continued on to New York to a new transcontinental record of 10 hours and 20 minutes, and Roscoe Turner of Los Angeles, who captured third in the Bendix race with 9 hours, 2 minutes and 25 seconds and dashed on to a coast to New York time of 11 hours and 3 minutes, were both expected back here during the afternoon.

Program Of Day.

Straightaway speed dashes for women led the speed program for the day. Similar contests were scheduled for the men, but the

Rural Schools Show Increase

Early Attendance Reports
Indicate That Enrollment
Will Be Heavy

MANY ROOMS ARE FOUND OVERCROWDED

With schools in the three townships opening yesterday, county school officials were given an insight into conditions which are going to prevail this winter with a tremendous increase in enrollment forecasted.

While complete figures on the various schools are not available as yet, some remarkable gains have been shown, both in the elementary and high schools.

Heavy Enrollments.

At Brent, in Plain Grove township, one room was found with 62 pupils under one teacher, while another had an enrollment of 48.

The same condition prevailed at Harlansburg, where 55 pupils reported for the first grade, the elementary school being terribly overcrowded. Scott township high school will have an increased enrollment of approximately 75. Principal Porter McCandless reported to County Superintendent John C. Syling, who FRYEBURG, Me., Aug. 30.—Maine's largest turnout as audience for nature's most elaborate theatrical spectacle, a total eclipse of the sun, was in full progress today.

Hardly a hotel, inn or tourist's cabin within a radius of 20 miles of this city chief point of concentration for scientific expeditions had a room unoccupied.

Hopeful Maine publicity officials estimate that more than 2,000,000 strangers will have gathered at vantage points along the 102-mile wide path of totality extending across this state, upper New Hampshire and Vermont, before the eclipse begins tomorrow afternoon.

A concentration of scientists, numbering most of the chief astronomers and physicists of the world, will be equipped with a number of devices which have never been used before to study an eclipsed sun.

"Ma" Ferguson Is Now Leading In Texas Election

(International News Service)
DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 30.—With 945,776 votes cast Saturday in the Texas Democratic run-off primary already counted, the narrow margin of 404 votes today separated the relative positions of the two candidates in the gubernatorial race.

Former Gov. Miriam (Ma) Ferguson regained the lead late last night after losing it early yesterday to Gov. Ross S. Sterling.

The tabulation by the Texas election bureau, based on returns from the 254 counties of the state, including 220 complete, gave Mrs. Ferguson a total of 473,090 votes and Gov. Sterling 472,686.

INSANITY PLEA IS BEING FOUGHT

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 30.—After spending his 23rd birthday on the witness stand in his trial for the "love slaying" of his pretty 23-year-old wife, Harry Clark today hoped his dramatic appearance would have a beneficial effect on the jury trying him for murder.

Shortly after two doctors pronounced him a paranoiac, and a third declared him to be sane, Clark took the stand and, in a hysterical frenzy, related incidents which led up to the stabbing of his wife in a neighbor's home. Dr. A. L. Osterman, a specialist on mental diseases of Wheeling, W. Va., substantiated the testimony of Dr. J. F. Donehoo of this city who called the defendant a paranoiac. Dr. J. H. Cary, jail physician here for the past eight years, disputed this claim. He told of consultations with other physicians and said Clark acted normally in the county jail.

Cannot Remember.

Clark disclaimed any knowledge of killing his wife and was unable to recall any statements made in an alleged confession shortly after the stabbing.

"My head swelled and my skin got numb," he explained. "I said something and wanted her to come back home. The next thing I remember I was down on my knees holding my wife's hand and kissing her. Blood was coming from her wounds and she looked up at me."

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 30.—Supreme Court Justice Ellis J. Staley's doubled-edged decision that he has no power to restrain Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt from removing Mayor James J. Walker—but in the same opinion criticizing the manner in which the trial of the Mayor is being conducted—was regarded today as paving the way for a lively explosion when the Walker ouster hearing is resumed next Friday afternoon.

John J. Curtin, the Mayor's chief counsel, in commenting on Justice Staley's decision, made this significant assertion:

"We will not appeal until we learn the manner in which the governor will comply with the order of the petition."

In other words, it is assumed that Curtin will demand next Friday that the governor change the method of procedure to conform with the law as laid down by Justice Staley. Justice Staley in his ruling said

Surprisingly Large Number Of Checks Are Handled In City

When your Uncle Sam needed some additional change to balance up his budget, he seemed to know where to get the money in an easy fashion. One of the gold mines he picked out for additional revenue was a tax of two cents upon every check drawn in the United States and thus far it has been responsible for some important money.

BELIEVE STORM DANGER IS PAST FOR FLORIDA

(International News Service)

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 30.—Apparently spending its wrath in the wilds of the virtually uninhabited Southern Everglades, danger from the West Indian hurricane which for two days has threatened cities of the Florida East Coast was believed past early today.

Moving in a southeasterly direction, the center of the tropical storm swept out of the Atlantic Ocean struck and passed over Homestead, 25 miles south of here, shortly before midnight last night. Winds of gale force and heavy rainfall accompanied the disturbance, but no damage, other than to orchards and truck farming, was reported.

Hundreds To Gaze At Sun
On Wednesday Afternoon

Ready To View
Sun's Eclipse

Plenty of Americans will be chasing a shadow tomorrow, a shadow that comes but once in a long time, but when it comes attracts millions, including scientists, saxophone players and ordinary citizens.

The occasion will be the eclipse of the sun, total in the New England states and about 88 per cent total in this district.

In the New England states, over a stretch 350 miles long, thousands of people made reservations for the unusual sight. Scientists from all parts of the world will be gathered in Maine and New Hampshire to record the eclipse, study the effect of it on radio transmission, seek further information on the corona, take the temperature of the heat radiated from the corona and make other scientific observations.

Totality at 3:30 P. M.

The eclipse is expected to be in totality at 3:30 o'clock eastern standard time, and at this time will show the 88 per cent of totality.

Persons expecting to look at the sun during the eclipse are warned against looking at it with the naked eye. There are strange light rays from the corona which affect the eyes seriously, and the best thing to use for viewing the eclipse is a piece of smoked glass, heavily smoked, by the way.

Just what an eclipse means is not yet clear to the scientists. They know what causes it, but what its effect is they are not sure. Tomorrow afternoon the eclipse will be sufficiently dense here to bring about a twilight effect and probably cool the atmosphere. That's something.

The purpose of the meeting will be to give the teachers new and old the plan of organization, to discuss questions that may arise with the opening of school, and to arrange for building meetings with principals during the afternoon.

There will be no special speaker

Eclipse On Wed-

WEATHER FIRST
SUCCESS FACTOR

By ANNIE JUMP CANNON
(Written Expressly For and Copyright, 1932 by International News Service.)

HEADQUARTERS, HARVARD
ECLIPSE EXPEDITION, GRAY,
Me., Aug. 30.—It is impossible to forecast a total solar eclipse. As with people, so with eclipses. No two are alike. Each has its good and bad features, its favorable and unfavorable characteristics.

For tomorrow's great event we may put as the very first of the favorable features the fact that the eclipse is ours. Its far-flung shadow falls not on a Pacific atoll, not on a barren Australian beach, but on our own home land. The season is propitious also for it is in the height of the summer holiday when scientific folks of all nations are free to travel far and wide.

Still Is Accessible.

The site is accessible not only to us in America but near our largest sea ports where astronomers of other nations land. There are, however, some features about this eclipse which are not so favorable.
In the first place there is the short duration of totality—only one minute and a half at best, too brief for all that is to be done. Why is it, we ask, have all the long total eclipses of our day, those lasting five or six minutes, chosen to travel across such far-away places as Central Africa, Sumatra, Patagonia or Tin Can Island?

Also unfavorable to tomorrow's program is it that the sun which is in Leo will be in a poor star field,
where a sufficient number of bright stars are not near enough to the sun to make it worth while to try for further confirmation of the Einstein deflection of light. This is more important now that some German measures of plates made at the 1929 eclipse have, as it were, out-Einstein'd Einstein by showing greater deflection of star light than relativity allows. Other forces may be involved. Who knows?

Weather Important.

On which side shall we list the weather? It is now the all-important and wholly uncertain factor.
We know that the eclipse will occur only a few seconds before or after the predicted time, but meteorologists tell us that we have only an even chance for a clear sky. We rehearse our program and live in high hopes.

At any rate, astronomers of many lands have come to America to outdo the Incas of old in worship of the sun. I am asked why. Primarily because the sun is a star, one of the millions which we encounter in our researches on the Cosmos, one of thousands of similar constitution and the only one near enough for us to study in detail. A real astronomer is a seeker after knowledge.
He believes that all knowledge is useful, and will in the end concern mankind even if today it may seem utterly lacking in value to humanity.

The flash spectrum and the corona seem to be the prime favorites for investigation tomorrow. Trials were made early as 1882 to observe the corona without a total eclipse, but it tenaciously remained wholly an eclipse problem until July, 1930,
when a young French astronomer, Bertrand Lyot of the Paris observatory, succeeded on a mountain observatory in seeing the green and red coronal rays with a direct vision spectroscope.

He also investigated the polarization of the coronal light. All honor to Professor Lyot, but the corona is such a difficult object to observe, to separate from the other gaseous surroundings of the sun that for many years certainly it will intrigue astronomers at totality. Its effect on everybody is almost appalling when with startling rapidity it flashes
forth as if it were from nothingness, to form a radiant sight of other worlds than ours.

Does it indeed consist of a new element unknown to us in these earthly habitations, or is it something very familiar to us, like oxygen under conditions which we can not duplicate? It's mysticism but adds to it's charm. In tomorrow's story some of the plans for observing the corona will be given, and also some suggestions as to the most important sights to look for during the eclipse.

OVER 76,000 CHECKS
HANDLED BY BANKS

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 30.—With statewide political interest stimulated by militant party and legislative issues and intensified by the Republican-Democratic clash for the United States senate seat held by Senator
Samuel M. Shortridge, California was polling its heaviest vote in primary election history today.

The check tax is clean money for the government. The bank is responsible for the collection and payment of it and the government does nothing but hold out its hand. Bankers here seem to agree that a check tax is bad banking practice in that it tends to restrict the free use of the checking convenience. Whether it will be a real deterrent to the use of checks or not remains to be seen.

There are some exemptions under the check tax law. For example, a corporation with a large pay roll,
paid by check, now does not issue checks. It issues certificates which certify that John Doe is entitled to so much money against the account of the corporation and the total is then taken up by one large check.
No tax is collected upon these certificates nor is there any tax collected upon counter checks. A counter check is one drawn by a depositor payable to himself and in which the money is received in person by himself.

RURAL SCHOOLS SHOW INCREASE

with Assistant County Superintendent Clare B. Book visited the schools in that section yesterday.

Union high school had an enrollment of 481 pupils on the opening day Monday, the attendance last year having averaged around 400, with more expected to enroll before schools are also crowded to capacity, it was reported.

Complete attendance figures in

County Superintendent Syling
blames the great increase on the fact that a great number of former houses being noticed now, he has found in his visits throughout the rural section.

Mr. Syling stated that many of the districts will be hard pushed to care for the number of pupils enrolled,
but believes that it can be accomplished.

he not only was powerless to re-

Some Interpretation Yet.

Secretary of Revenue Clyde L.
King has already made some interpretations of the act and there will undoubtedly be more. A hypothetical case was submitted to him by Senator Andrew J. Sordoni of Luxembourg county in which he asked this:

"If a steel mill sells bars to a tin plate mill, it in turns sells the tin plate to a canning company and it in turn sells the cans to an oil company which fills the cans with oil and sells it, who pays the tax?" Secretary King answered that the tax would be collected when the oil was sold in the can. There is to be no pyramiding of the tax.

The tax goes on September 1, 1932

and comes off automatically February 28. There is no possibility that the law can remain upon the books as it stands specifically states that February 28, 1932 ends it.

No deductions are permitted for overhead, or for credit accounts.

The tax is applied to the gross sales of the retailer. A dealer doing $10,000 worth of business between September 1, 1932 and February 28, 1933 will owe the state $100 at the end of the period and must file a statement of his gross sales together with his check. Any evasion is subject to a fine and the state has the power to examine the books of any company
if suspected of submitting a false set of figures. For such a practice
there is a fine.

It is very probable that from time to time there will be interpretations of the act made by Dr. King. However, the act is very clear to retailers of all products.

COUNTY RELIEF BOARD PREPARES TO FUNCTION

Work Relief

When and where it is possible,
work will be offered to the person asking for relief. Any able bodied man refusing to do work he is able to do in return for the food orders will be barred from further participation.

The orders issued by the county commissioners or Mayor's Relief Committee will be paid upon proper warrant by the state board.

No member of the County Emergency Relief Board will be paid any salary, neither will there be any allowance for expenses of any kind.

If the board has any expenses it must be provided by the money from local sources entirely. Not a dime of the Talbot money is to go for overhead, 100 per cent of it must go for relief. Orders will be audited by the Auditor-General and any private group expending funds must submit to an audit.

Lancaster County has been allocated $14,394 for the month of September. Assuming that this is proportionate amount it would mean that the county's total allocation out of the Talbot Act would be $115,152
for the period the act covers.

Further details will be available
upon the workings of the county board following the meeting in Harrisburg Wednesday.

A marriage of interest to many in this vicinity is that of Miss Mabel Mae Ashton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Ashton of Delaware avenue and Paul George, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. George of Auburn Stop, both of this city.

The ceremony, an event of Saturday, August 27, was performed at Erie, Pa., with the Rev. David Anderson, a close friend of the George family, officiating with the impressive ring service at his home.

The bride was attractive in a gown of pale blue crepe with hat and other accessories to correspond. They were unattended.

MRS. J. M. BLACKWOOD HOSTESS TO CLASS

Mrs. J. M. Blackwood delightfully entertained members of her Sunday school class of the Reformed Presbyterian church in her home on East Washington street Monday evening at a tureen dinner.

The menu was served at seven o'clock, the tables being prettily appointed in tones of green and white, and the menu was enjoyed by candlelight. Covers were laid for twelve including Miss Frances Kennedy, a special visitor of the class.

A business meeting followed, president Miss Edna Jenkins presiding, and plans were discussed for the fall work. It was decided to hold a meeting of the last day of each month. Devotions were lead by Mrs. Blackwood and the Misses Edith Pattison and Dorothy Riley.

A period of sociability filled in the balance of the evening.

SURPRISE GATHERING HONORS BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Frank Taylor entertained in her home on Neshannock boulevard Saturday evening, a few young folks at a surprise bridge party in honor of the birthday anniversary of her daughter, Mrs. Robert Sawatzke who now resides at Rochester, Pa.

With the individual tables being quickly redecorated in the seasons tones, and centered with vases of garden flowers, Mrs. Taylor served a delicious lunch at the close of the evening.

At an appropriate time, the guest of honor was cleverly presented with a collection of neatly wrapped packages and when opened revealed some beautiful and serviceable gifts, in memory of the day.

The fifth annual reunion of Parshall school was held at the school building Saturday, August 27, with a large crowd present.

A bountiful dinner was served at noon, and this was followed by informal talks given by those present and the remaining hours were spent in social chat and reminiscences of school days.

Many guests were present who have not attended the reunions before and plan to be back next year. Guests were present from New Castle, Ellwood City, Pittsburgh, Wilmerding, Sharon, Mercer, Franklin, Niles, O., Barberville, O., and other places. The same officers were re-elected for next year: President, J. A. Minich; vice president, C. C. Winter; secretary, treasurer, Olive M. Clinefelter. The 1933 reunion will be held at the same time and place—Saturday, August 28, 1933. Plans are being made for a bigger and better reunion than ever next year.

CAPITALISTIC COMMUNISM

THE dictum that if all the wealth of the world were equally distributed it would eventually filter back into comparatively few hands needs not to be proved. For wealth is not, and can never be, a static quantity. Whenever it is used it is shifted to a greater or less degree.

The idea of financial equality has been more fully tried in Russia than anywhere else in these times; and we have recurring evidence that it will not work. Almost from the beginning the Soviet Government had to compromise with the capitalist regime. It found that the desire to accumulate for oneself could not be eradicated.

To get ahead with the Five Year Plan is the immediate goal of Stalin and his associates. But this ambition is shown to be incompatible with uniform wages. The limit of 300 rubles a month—the equivalent of $150—put on salaries has proved impracticable. The new plan, which judges the value of the achievement by the result, quite after the capitalist fashion, has resulted in substantial salary increases to the Communists in charge of Soviet factories. The amounts range from 700 to 800 rubles a month. Thus an incentive is furnished such as Communism theoretically opposes.

THE DREAMS OF YOUTH

Away down deep in his aristocratic old heart, King Boris of Bulgaria, with all the power and wealth of a kingdom at his command, still retains a boyhood hankering to be a locomotive engineer. This enlightening bit of intelligence is brought back by Augustus Phillips of Falls City, Neb., a real honest-to-goodness engineer who has just returned from a visit to Boris' domain.

What boy, rich or poor, prince or potentate, hasn't harbored the ambition at one time or another to grow up and become a locomotive engineer? Some boys want to be soldiers or sailors, others aspire to become miners, mail carriers, policemen or Lindberghs, but nearly every youngster, oddly enough, must pass through the locomotive engineer time of life.

For hours, while affairs of state waited and diplomats cooled their heels outside, King Boris and Engineer Phillips talked of mogul engines, big wheels, narrow and standard gauges, automatic stokers and all the other doo-dads that go to make up a locomotive. Boris lived again the dreams of his boyhood when he held the throttle of a gigantic engine thundering down the tracks a mile a minute with the smoke rushing by, and the destiny of a hundred souls in the coaches behind in his hands.

Twas ever thus. He wanted to be an engineer and he became only a king.

MORE BATHS

The young lady vacationing on a farm which does not boast of all modern improvement, who wrote home to her mother that she had been taught that cleanliness was next to godliness but that where she was it was next to impossible, was not describing an exceptional condition, not even in America with all her modern plumbing and domestic and public sanitation.

There are regions where the scarcity of water forces its economical use. But there are still other well-supplied regions where the people have not accustomed themselves to the use of water for sanitary purposes.

When bathtubs were first introduced in American cities, following the establishment of public water supply systems, some ordinances restricting the individual to one bath a week were passed for the protection of the public health. For centuries before that it was the general belief in Europe that too many applications of water to the human body were injurious to health, and Europeans enforced and obeyed anti-bathing laws.

With the years came intelligence and more baths, until today one bath a week is not considered enough from the standpoint both of sanitation and health, and the decrease in various forms of diseases can be traced to the spreading use of water.

LIFE ITS OWN MEMORIAL

That styles in tombstone inscriptions are subject to change and have changed in certain essential respects during the last half century are facts brought to public attention by a veteran Ohio stonemason who has been carving epitaphs for five decades. The public, however, will not agree with him that the change is for the worse.

The sculptor for the dead laments that sentimental epitaphs are no longer inscribed on headstones. The modern custom of carving only names and dates on tombstones represents to him so much less work per stone.

Perhaps there are still places in the "uncivilized" hinterland where mourning relatives cause to be chiseled upon the monuments of the dead brief testimonials to the character of the deceased, elegiac or scriptural verses, and even notes of warning to the living or an apophysis on the dead. Rural cemeteries furnish many grotesque examples of this custom of not so long ago.

And why should the tombstone furnish more facts about the dead than the name and dates of birth and death? If one has not lived a good life, asserting the contrary on the headstone will not alter the fact. If the life has been exemplary it needs no memorial.

Man's works are preserved elsewhere than on polished slabs of marble and as he lives he writes the record of that life upon a tablet that not even time can wholly efface.

Dead men tell no tales, but their safety-deposit boxes do.

Conventions may be a good thing, but for what is a little vague.

A farmer traded his farm for a radio set. Apparently there are worse things than static.

An Old-Time Love Letter
 From George To Harriet
 Quaint, Unhurried, Serious

By MARSHALL MASLIN

George wrote a love-letter to Harriet.

Long ago, way back in 1845, before the Mexican war, before the Civil war, before the World war and everything. Don't know how old George was, nor Harriet either. . . . But the letter sounds as if he were a sophisticated gentleman of 29 and she a fair young maid. He was working in Ohio City, O. She was "living at home" in Middlebury. . . . After the toil of the day, George sat down and wrote to Harriet, and I have the letter. It is faded and creased and somewhat torn, but George is there. In that old, old letter, George is present, and this is what he wrote to Harriet:

"My dear girl—it is with the most profound regard that I take up my pen to trace these few lines to you. When I think of the vast obligations which I am under to you for your love and esteem, my heart beats with a thrill of ecstasy at the thought that we may one day enjoy each other's society undivided. Although we are separated by distance, I trust that our hearts are united, never to be separated, not even by death itself. For may not the disconsolate mourner commune with the departed whilst shedding the silent tear to the memory of the departed one?

"I received your most affectionate letter last evening, and read it with thrilling interest, happy, that most estimable blessing. I never loved better health that I have since I came to this place, and I sincerely hope this may find you enjoying the same, and let me say to you, as a friend and one that loves you dearly, above all upon earth, to be careful of your health. When that is gone what are we? Poor, miserable beings. What can redeem it? Not gold, nay, all the gold that ancient Croesus was in possession of could not restore him to health when he had destroyed it in all the pleasures of the Persian court.

"I long to see you, and look forward to the time when we will be wrapped in each other's embraces. How often I have thought of you in the midnight hour, when you perhaps were wrapped in profound sleep. I retire to rest, with a prayer for your welfare, and arise fresh for the toils of the day. . . .

"If I should ever inconstant prove, shed not a tear for me, discard me from your memory as unworthy of a sigh. For what is man without stability of character or wretched, yes, a most detestable wretch. Could I harbor such a thought! Impossible when you have expressed so much love, a never-ending friendship for me. But if you are all you express yourself in your letters, I have found what I have vainly sought for the society of a vast number of females. To an inexperienced eye they appear possessed of all the refined sensibility that woman is capable of possessing, but still they are not what they appear to be. When you become ultimately acquainted with them, that reserve wears off and they are transformed into cold, heartless coquots. But to pass over the past and think of the future is all that we have to console ourselves.

"I am now in a land of strangers, with none to console me. If you were only here to beguile the tedious hours, I should be happy, though I were in the far distant wilds of America with no other being but yourself I should be happy, yes, thrice happy in the society of one possessed of such refined sensibilities. Whilst I have been tracing these lines, I have viewed your image, which is stamped indelibly upon my memory. The symmetry of your form, your mild blue eyes, your blushing cheek and rosy lips.

"How many happy hours I have spent in your society and the kind feelings that you have expressed toward me will live fresh on my memory until the last sand has run from the glass of life. I shall expect to hear from you in the course of a week after you receive this. I remain your most affectionate friend and lover."

And Harriet, if you are curious, did marry George, and she was always sweet and he was always constant, and I have met their grandchildren.

THE CHANGE
 A little less cream on the oatmeal each morning.

A little less fashion our bodies adorning.
 A little less leisure, a little less madness.
 A little less wild life we fancied was gladness.
 A little less boasting, a little less fretting.
 And it may be that back to our senses we're getting.

A little more thinking, a little less chatter.
 Less money to do with, but what does it matter?
 A little less roaming, a little less gaining.
 A little more thought to our young people's training.
 A little less freedom, a little less shrinking.
 A little less seeking rewards without working.

Conditions have altered! There's none who can doubt it. There's something we've lost, but we'll get on without it.
 A little less shamming and golden calf-slavery.
 A little more wisdom, a little more bravery.
 A little more thought for receipts and expenses.
 And perhaps we are all getting back to our senses.

The day of the drummer is past. Now they are all salesmen—hard working go-getters who love their competitors and hold in high esteem the man who does the buying—who know not the art of flirting and do not permit pleasure to interfere with their business. Though the old time drummer was supposed to be a happy-go-lucky person who never felt down-hearted, his heart was not always as light as his laughter. We have unearthed a bit at least during the hay fever season.

Contrast Of Hoover-Curtis Dry Views Arouses Comment

Repeal And Non-Repeal Stands Of Two Candidates Of Republican Party Inspire Wide Variety Of Comments From Members Of Both Parties.

Vice President Charles Curtis' unqualified endorsement of prohibition is contrasted with President Hoover's position and there is a wide variety of opinion as to their failure to agree on policies relating to the dry laws.

Among the most favorable comments is that of the SIOUX FALLS ARGUS-LEADER (Ind. Rep.), which believes that "the two candidates are not far apart on the question" as both vigorously oppose the saloon and agree that the gains obtained under prohibition should be retained." The TOPEKA DAILY CAPITAL (Rep.) thinks that the Curtis speech "will appeal to the common man by its frankness and sincerity." That paper adds that as to the farm problem, Mr. Curtis made a "commendably frank statement of the case," quoting his remark that most of bills for farm relief "have not come up to the expectation of those who introduced and supported them."

"Vice President Curtis stood on the ground that he has always taken in public life, and whatever views voters may have on the subject they cannot but respect the integrity of his mind," says the SALT LAKE DESERET NEWS (Ind.). The CHARLESTON (W. Va.) DAILY MAIL (Ind. Rep.) states that, including the farm problem and prohibition, "he met the issues as squarely and as frankly as did the president."

The CHARLESTON (W. Va.) DAILY MAIL (Ind. Rep.) states that, including the farm problem and prohibition, "he met the issues as squarely and as frankly as did the president." The CHARLESTON (W. Mr. Curtis, as a prohibitionist, agrees to this quite as distinctly as any repeat advocate."

While the fact may never have been brought to your attention, the center of population in Northeastern United States is located in Mercer County just north of New Wilmington, according to a statistical map prepared by the Greater Pennsylvania Council. This fact, according to Dr. Charles A. Reitell, is only one of the reasons why the Shenango-Beaver Valley offers more potentialities for development than any section in this part of the country. If you will drive north from New Wilmington you will be in the center of an area which has about an equal population north, south, east and west of it. According to the statistical map, there are 36,983,365 people north of the parallel drawn at this point, 31,405,170 south of it.

Payments On Liens
Are Falling Off*White Suggests Those Who Can Pay Should Be Forced To Pay

City Solicitor Robert White submitted a letter to city council in which he stated he had noted that the collections on municipal liens have fallen off so considerably that the city is not being able to retire the certificates which have been given to contractors for municipal improvements as promptly as was formerly done.

"Unless something is done to remedy the situation it may cause serious difficulty if the city desires to make further improvements and pay for them with certificates" he wrote.

He wrote that there is no solution except to collect the city liens outstanding. The communication also said that "this would be hard but some can make payments". He declared his office had arranged a system whereby monthly payments could be made.

Those who do not make arrangements to pay and whose excuse is not considered adequate ought to be required to submit their case to council and unless council gives them an extension of time the letter stated action should be taken to collect the money.

White said he had prepared a form which could be sent to the persons affected and they could call at his city hall office concerning the liens. Councilman Hoyland was on the verge of offering a motion to this effect when White and council decided that further study should be given the situation.

Twin Sphinx of Politics Bother Parties

One eminent Republican and one eminent Democrat continue to sit on the sidelines, instead of making party speeches, much to the distress of the chieftains of each party. New Castle High Opens Grid Camp

Football Candidates Taken To Camp Located At Muddy Creek Falls

Will Spend Week In Hard Training For Coming Grid Season

New Castle high school football team entrained for camp at Muddy Creek Falls, Monday afternoon. The remainder of the week will be spent in learning the fundamentals of football at the quiet camp situated in the woods of Ross Point.

It is very likely that with the workouts already put in at Taggart Field, that the team will be ready for scrimmage in a day or two. The decision to go to camp came very quickly, and was a surprise to the boys.

Supervising the party that went to camp was Head Coach Phil H. Bridenbaugh, Assistant Coaches Klee and Thomas and Faculty Manager Ralph H. Gardner. The usual corps of student football managers made the trip also.

This is the first time in two years that the team has gone to camp. The idea was abandoned last year, but practices at Taggart Field didn't go so well, and for that reason the officials decided to send the squad to camp. It is presumed that about 35 men were in the party that left New Castle some time Monday.

Camp will end Friday or Saturday. While out there the daily routine will be two practices a day, morning and afternoon, with a long rest period and good fresh air and food.

There are 48 young candidates trying for positions.

The outlook at Union this year is very promising. The team is going to be heavier than last year's team. Last year's lettermen will be shifted around by Coach Boyd to get them in the proper place. Ruffing-Gomez Strikeout Kings

Grove Is Third This Year In Number Of Strikeouts, Ruffing Has 174

INDIANS WIN ON ONLY FIVE HITS

By LES CONKLIN
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Due to an injured foot that kept him out of action for a month earlier in the season, Lefty Grove is likely to lose his crown as strike-out king of the majors this season.

Although the lanky Southpaw of the A's intends to do extra mound work from now on to make up for lost time, he has less than four weeks in which to increase his strikeout total. The big league leaders in that specialty are Charley Ruffing and Vernon Gomez of the Yankees with 174 and 166 respectively. Grove is third with 162.

Ruffing and Gomez increased their totals yesterday as the Yanks two-timed the White Sox, 10 to 3 and 10 to 3. Gomez struck out only two batters in winning the opener while Ruffing whiffed five in annexing the nightcap. Gomez became the first big league hurler to win 22 games this season.

Yanks Beat Record.

Incidentally, the Yanks completed their 129th game of the season without getting white-washed, surpassing the record they set in 1927 by going 128 games before being blanked at the hands of Grove.

New York's lead in the American League race was increased to 11½ games, as the A's were nosed out in the ninth by Detroit, 10 to 7, after George Earnshaw had led the Tigers to five hits and won the first game of the double bill, 8 to 3.

Coming behind four times to the score, Washington nosed out the Browns in the thirteenth, 7 to 6 on singles by West and Kerr and Maple's fly. Stewart went the route for the Browns.

McNaughton and Rhodes of the Red Sox held Cleveland to five hits but issued twelve passes and Cleveland won 6 to 3. Averill of the Indians walked five times and scored three runs despite the fact that he made no hits and was not charged with a single time at bat.

All National League clubs were idle.

Coaches Conduct Skull Drill At School Monday

Bad Weather Forces Grid Candidates Indoors Monday Afternoon

ELLWOOD CITY, Aug. 30.—The rain yesterday afternoon did not interfere with the plans of Ellwood high's new coaches, George "Gandy" Benedict and Mike Ferrare. The grid squad was put through a rugged three-hour program Monday morning, and in the afternoon when the rain came a skull drill was conducted in the school room.

Coaches Benedict and Ferrare gave their squad several plays which they explained. Immediately following the drill Coach Benedict announced that scrimmage sessions would be conducted this afternoon at Lincoln field.

Anyone that will wear a blue and white uniform this fall will be thoroughly deserving it, Coach Benedict stated. The school has purchased first-class equipment and has a fine field. He is looking for real players to wear these uniforms and use the field to care for.

"Little Miss Nobody" as she was named is now a somebody. She has a home and a name and parents who love her as though she were their own. They who are will never be made public. The hospital believes, and rightly so, that it might serve to embarrass the foster parents if their names were known, and their names will remain secret.

They have adopted her and the little mite will never know but what she is the real child of the kindly hearted people who have taken her in and made her their own.
